FAT CHANCE

Mackinac Island, Mich.- Don R. Grimes, president of the Independent Grocers' Alliance food stores, recently stated that unless Americans change their eating habits, the average man will weigh a whopping 370 pounds and his wife 346 pounds by 2957. In 1870, men weighed an average of 137 while their wives were 21 pounds lighter. By 1920 both had put on an additional 11 pounds and 50 years from now men will average 160 and women 137.

DOESN'T LIKE DEANS

Almagordo, N. Mex.- Charlie Dean and Ray Dean advise anyone else, whose name happens to be Dean, to stay away from the corner of Vermont Avenue and 15th Street here. A large yellow dog took a bite out of them, at different times, the same afternoon. The men are not even related.

Matter of Diet Makes Queen Bee Differ From Rest

WASHINGTON — The difference between a queen bee and an ordinary bee is a matter of diet.

Simply by eating a special food —"royal jelly"—for two and a half days at a critical time of life makes the young honey bee into a queen — long-lived, fertile, but with no maternal instincts.

The worker bees, also female, are not egg layers, but they do the work of rearing the young.

Each bee begins life as a comma-shaped egg, laid by a queen in the bottom of a waxen cell in the honeycomb. The eggs hatch into grublike larvae.

At first all grubs eat the royal jelly—a sour-sweet substance resembling condensed milk. It is secreted by worker bees.

After three days on the royal diet, commoners of the hive are switched to a honey and pollen formula. But the bee that happens to be hatched in a large, specially-prepared queen cell sups on the royal fare for the rest of her five and a half-day larval life. When she is an adult, she is attended by circle of nurse bees which continue to feed her the jelly as she goes about the hive laying eggs. She can lay thousands in a single day, with a total weight heavier than her own.

In addition to supporting this egg production, her highness' diet apparently enables her to live as long as five years.

Farm Problem Is Far From Solved

Despite twenty billion dollars spent by the federal government in the past two decades for agricultural aid, our farm problems have not been solved and some of our current measures aimed at their solution are self-defeating and socially undesirable although others are constructive and useful, says a Twentieth Century Fund book, "Can We Solve the Farm Problem?"

"The agricultural legislation of the war years and most of that since has been of the 'antidepression' type, though used principally as a means of maintaining a wartime level of prosperity for farmers," says the author of the Twentieth Century Fund study. "The fear of a return to 1930 conditions has continued strong, but the principal objective of much of the recent legislation has been the maintenance of high levels of demand and price rather than the prevention of serious depression . . . The time seems now to have arrived when we must, whether we wish it or not, look ahead and try to develop a farm program suited to conditions that do not reflect either anemia of the depression years or the robust demand of the 1940's.

Hearing Aid Must Be Properly Fitted

CHICAGO—Just buying a hearing aid is not enough, hearing specialists report. A deaf person must make sure that it is properly fitted and that he learns how to use it correctly.

Training in the proper use of a hearing aid can greatly increase its value. For instance, one patient with nerve deafness improved her discrimination ability from 58 per cent to 89 per cent with 20 hours of formal training.

However, many patients not only fail to receive proper instruction in the use of their aids, but they also don't even bother to make sure their aids fit properly. They frequently fail to follow their doctor's advice to go to their hearing aid dealer for correction, and to return for retesting to see whether the changes resulted in improvement.

Early Marine Life On Santa Catalina

LOS ANGELES—Evidence of a thriving "marine" civilization on Santa Catalina Island, southern California's famed tourist resort, as early as 2000 B.C. has been reported by a UCLA anthropologist.

Dr. Clement Meighan says that radioactive carbon techniques used to date Indian relics uncovered in the Little Harbor area of the Island have established the site as about 4,000 years old.

Relics include primitive bone fish "hooks", quartz spear points, stone hammers for tenderizing abalone, mortars and pestles for grinding plant seeds, and shell beads. There were also large numbers of bones from dolphins, seals, and other forms of marine life uncovered at the site.

Transmitters

WASHINGTON—There are 342,000 licenses, authorizing about 1,200,000 fixed and mobile radio transmitters, in the United States today. Some 30,000 of these licenses, involving 410,000 transmitters, were authorized in one year alone.

DIDN'T WORK

San Diego, Calif.- Paul Protzman turned up the heat in his apartment to dry some clothes. The extra heat touched off an automatic fire sprinkler. Protzman's clothes got all wet again and water leaked down through another apartment into a photography shop and a beauty shop.

Postal-rate increases will probably be deferred until next year.

KNOW YOUR NAVY

THE "BOS'UN" IS A MASTER SEAMAN SKILLED IN MANY TRADES OF THE SEA. A LEADER OF MEN SKILLED IN HANDLING DECK CREWS, HE WEARS THE NAVY'S OLDEST RATING, KNOWS HIS SHIP AND HOW TO KEEP HER TRIM. THE BOATSWAIN'S MATE CAN TIE ANY KNOT, OPERATE AND MAINTAIN SMALL BOATS, SUPERVISE LOADING OF CARGO OR DOUBLE AS GUN CAPTAIN IN AN EMERGENCY.

Health and Beauty

People who are intelligent, and whose thoughts run upon noble achievement and are benevolent and kind acquire countenances that bespeak superior men and women. As the years pass, their faces grow in charm not possessed in youth.

Those who spend their time in the pursuit of shallow amusements, who depend for pleasure upon that which pampers their vanity and affords passing entertainment, soon lose the attraction that they had in youth. Their faces become fat and heavy, with inane, stupid expressions or else they grow thin, sharp and pinched, like their characters. Many of them betray the disappointment and discontent that possesses them. Time has been busy etching their emotions and habits on their features.

The girl who is good natured and jolly, whose merry laugh falls pleasantly upon the ear, is sought as a companion far more frequently than one who has only good looks, to recommend her.

Madame de Sevign, who lived during the reign of Louis XIV, exercised great influence upon the political and social world. She was extremely popular on account of her brilliant mind, gracious manners, and kind heart. Her daughter, though much more beautiful than her mother, was greatly disliked, because she was so selfish and indifferent to the interest and happiness of those about her.

To prove that the expression is moulded by environment and habits of thought, we have but to contrast the habitual crook with the philanthropist. The eyes of the former are shifty, cruel and crafty. He is practised in the art of looking for opportunities to carry on his nefarious work or to make his escape from the clutches of the law. His very features are often distorted with malice, cunning or revenge. He plans and executes crime. He lives in fear and is always plotting wickedness or seeking means of escape from the consequences of his misdemeanors.

What a contrast is presented by the man whose life is honest, open and upright, who is helpful and considerate of his fellowmen. Even a little child or the dog on the street will trust him, while they shrink in terror from the criminal who preys upon society.

Thus people show in their faces what they are. Their lives are written upon their countenances. So we create our beauty as the years pass, by our thoughts and habits.

ABOUT YOUR HOME

By Frances Dell

All too often the kitchen turns out wrong. This is the most frequently remodeled room in the house. It is the room where the most steps are taken. However, the very woman who complained about how inconvenient the kitchen was will stand by during remodeling, while new appliances are arranged in exactly the same order as before.

The old, cut-and-dried kitchen plans are things of the past. This probably accounted for a lot of unsatisfactory kitchens. A kitchen should be fitted to the family, not the family to the kitchen.

The kitchen - den combination is very popular. Homemakers are doing more and more of their own work and it is much more pleasant to work not cut off from family activity.

If you have a full-time servant, the idea of a den-kitchen combination may seem terrible to you. The old-fashioned center work table is in demand once more. Usually, the new center work area is a counter built into the floor with drawers and cabinets for the various tools you will need.

Good lighting is a must. There are some fine fixtures designed for any kitchen need.

Surfaces and finishes that are durable and easy to clean have been developed. If you are building or remodeling, take plenty of time deciding on what kind of kitchen you and your family really need.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS

Kenosha, Wis.- A recent tussle between two "boys" wound with one striking the other with a glass jar, knocking him over the table. The "boys" were residents of an old folks home. The striker was in his late 70's, while his companion was 65.

IN FASHION NOW

A wonderful idea for the brisk days ahead is the knitted sheath dress in the smart new coor, cognac. Cognac is a perfect complement to black.

Cognac and black are used together by the leading fashion designers this fall. A Chesterfield double-breasted coat with the neat and elegant velvet collar will be ideally suited to almost any fashion situation which may come up.

Imported wools from France have a knitted look somewhat like "pointilliste" tweed. It is built up in tiny nubs of strong color. Giant chevron tweeds are fashion news again.

Intricate mixtures of bright-with-dark thread give brilliance and depth to many loose tweeds. Needlepoint wools and fabrics of note found mostly in the more expensive lines.

A noted men's clothing stylist says that olive green flannel may well be the new color to replace charcoal blacks and browns. Sometimes the olive is added to a standard shade in the form of a subtle olive stripe or combined with other colors like brown, onyx or charcoal to create a striking multitone effect.

In hosiery dark stockings and even pitch black stockings are being pushed by the manufacturers for after-dark wear. One ad stated, that "The lean and subtle silhuette is merged in the costume right down to the shoe with stockings of the same tone."

Dark stockings and colored stockings have never made a hit here in America, however.

Mr. and Mrs. Tilden Paulette visited Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Jones on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Jones were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harris.
